Description

On arriving at the ride-stop entrance of Hermia Wood, set amid a larger forest near the village of Bramham, it is apparent that the wood has good maturity with lofty Scots pine and larch setting the scene upon entering. There are one or two spruce trees too and amongst the shrub layer, evergreen holly bushes afford privacy, along with many beech and sycamore seedling trees as well as fragrant honeysuckle. The wood has been managed in the past and the tall trees are well spaced, allowing the development of natural regeneration so a varied age structure is developing.

From the ride-stop entrance, a path leads off directly through the trees. Roughly halfway into the wood, the type of trees change to mixed broadleaves with oak, sycamore and ash, giving way to a large area of mature beech trees. The ground flora changes too, and there are masses of bluebells and dog's mercury growing beneath the deciduous trees.

A rustic bench has been set in a scenic spot beneath the beeches, not far from the southern boundary. The bluebells are particularly abundant in the area, making quite a show in the spring, there are also significant swathes of wild garlic near the southern boundary.

Along the southern boundary, a section of grassy track is included with the wood, adjoining an old hedgerow of hawthorn, ash, sycamore, blackthorn and elder. Here butterflies and other pollinating insects travel along, drawn by the sunlight and wildflowers.

The purchasers of the woodland will be asked to enter into a covenant to ensure the quiet and peaceful enjoyment of adjoining woodlands and meadows.

Mature beech, Scots pine, larch and spruce with oak, sycamore, rowan, ash, hawthorn and elder.

Wildlife

The sound of nesting songbirds, declaring their territory and attracting mates is quite wonderful in the spring and early summer. At other times of the year, buzzards and red kites are quite conspicuous along with the more common blackbirds, robins, wrens and tits. Often, in the summer and autumn, nursery flocks of mixed tit species, move and feed together through the high canopy, calling constantly to one another as they go.

The wood is rich in wildlife due to its age and maturity as well as its connectivity to lots more woodland. If the new owner sets up a trail camera, they'd be likely to pick up badger, fox, brown hare as well as roe deer, which frequently bed down in the wood. Animal tracks criss-cross all over.

Local area and history

West Park Plantation, of which the wood is part, sits on a high ridge of limestone, just to the north of Bramham Park and Hope Hall.

Bramham is a product of a grand tour; its creator Robert Benson, later Lord Bingley, completed his formal education with a grand tour in 1697, and whilst in Italy he began to envisage his new mansion in the Palladian manner complemented in a landscaped park, in the fashion made popular by Le Nôtre in France in the late 17th century.

The house and park are still privately owned by the family with Nick Fox-Lane the current custodian, the estate is best known for hosting Leeds Festival and Bramham Horse Trials. The wood, until recently, was part of the estate.
