Description

Slipper Wood is an Ancient Semi-natural Woodland \(ASNW\) as designated by Natural England - a habitat that has remained continuously wooded since at least 1600 AD. Such woodlands are treasured for their exceptional biodiversity. The presence of hard ferns and bluebells attests its ancient origins, as both species are well-known indicators of long-established woodland.

Slipper Wood is situated approx. 3km south-west of Biddenden and 4km north-east of Benenden in the county of Kent. A private stoned track on the edge of open meadows provides access to the wood. There is a place for a new owner to park within the wood itself. Just beyond the ride stop a footbridge has been installed across the shallow ditch to reach the woodland. There is stock fencing along the edge of the woodland (from when livestock were previously grazing the meadows). A short section of fencing has been opened up to allow easy access into the woodland. The southeastern and north facing boundaries are marked with a line of chestnut fencing posts. The west facing boundaries are fenced. Boundaries are clearly marked with BLUE markings.

Part of the wider Brogues Wood landscape, Slipper Wood is embraced by open meadows to the northeast and companion woodlands to the north and southeast. The meadows stretch out in gentle light, offering breathtaking views and a haven for birds, butterflies, and bees. Hidden deep within the trees, a rustic wooden bench rests in a secluded clearing—a quiet sanctuary where time seems to slow, inviting you to sit, breathe, and lose yourself in the tranquil rhythm of the woodland.

The purchasers of the woodland will be asked to enter into a covenant to ensure the quiet and peaceful enjoyment of adjoining woodlands and meadows.

Trees

Slipper Wood is a mature oak woodland, quite open in places, with bracken understorey. Younger birch and alder feature along the flushes. A draft Woodland Management Plan for Brogues Wood (of which Slipper Wood is a part) is available upon request. There is a Tree Preservation Order on a very narrow strip along the north edge of Slipper Wood (details of this TPO are available upon request), though this does not prevent normal forest management when covered by a Forestry Commission approved woodland management plan. Slipper Wood sits within the Local Wildlife Site known as Sandpit Wood. Details of this can be downloaded from here.

Wildlife

Priority bird species including grasshopper warbler, spotted flycatcher, wood warbler, lesser redpoll, tree pipit, hawfinch, woodlark and yellowhammer are recorded locally and may make use of the woods for breeding or overwintering. Why not pop up a hide and see what bird species you can spot? Muntjac, roe and fallow deer have been recorded in the vicinity of the woodland.

Local area and history

The wood is situated approx. 3km south-west of Biddenden and 4km north-east of Benenden in the county of Kent. The nearby village of Biddenden was in the 1300's part of an important centre for Broadcloth manufacture, with much of the very attractive high street built during this period. Biddenden Vineyard is located nearby, which in addition to producing some fine wines, is also Kent's largest cider producer.

Ordnance Survey maps indicate that the areas currently under pasture were until at least the 1960s also under woodland but were subsequently deforested. However, the external woodland boundaries have changed very little since the mid-nineteenth century. There are some features of potential local archaeological interest in the woodland, including external wood-banks and ditches, remains of old tracks, and pits.
